TEMPLE BETH EL

Share our past Shape our future

Shabbat Passover in the Park Saturday April 4 at 10:00 am

Bring a chair, sunscreen, and a picnic lunch and join us at beautiful Bayview Park as together we celebrate Shabbat Passover with song, prayer, and study.

In addition to the beautiful morning liturgy, Rabbi Joel will lead a discussion of the special Torah reading for the first day of Passover, Exodus 21:21-51 which includes the rules for observance of this ancient festival.

Following the service, relax and enjoy a Passover lunch with friends and fellow community members. The local birds have kindly agreed to clean up any matzah crumbs left behind.

Family, friends, children and pets are all welcome and encouraged at this informal Shabbat morning experience.

Please note that on Friday, April 3, Shabbat evening worship will not be held at Azalea Trace or Temple Beth El.

Blues and Jews Road Trip: May 2 - May 5, 2015

Rabbi Fleekop and Jody Schlesinger are leading a road trip to explore the role of Jews in the Deep South and also take in a healthy dose of Blues Music.

We will be leaving Pensacola Saturday morning, May 2 and returning on Tuesday May 5. Planned stops in Mississippi include Jackson, Greenwood, Greenville, Vicksburg, Port Gibson, Natchez and Brookhaven. Each of these cities has a rich Jewish history and the legacy of a once-thriving Jewish community. Together we will tour historic synagogues, cemeteries, and other sites of interest, as well as meet with members of the Jewish communities who will tell their history and their hope for the future. Not to be left out, we will also take in the Blues that is so much a part of Mississippi. We will walk in the footsteps of B.B. King, Robert Johnson and Muddy Waters, and experience today's real deal Blues scene. Blues sites include B.B. King Museum, Robert Johnson gravesite, and many more.

For more information, including hotel pricing and other details, please contact Jody Schlesinger at: jwschlesinger@cox.net. Reservations requested prior to Monday, April 6.

Rabbi Joel Fleekop

From the Rabbi

In one of his routines, the comedian Jerry Seinfeld includes a series of jokes about check writing. He describes the dismay that overcomes him at the supermarket when, inevitably on an occasion he is pressed for time, the person in front of him at the cashier elects to pay with check. Seinfeld ruminates for a while about the choice of check and then concludes with his amazement at how proficient some people are at check writing.

I am certainly not one of those people. In the age of credit cards, automatic bill pay, and electronic banking, writing a check has become a very rare occurrence. With so little practice, filling out a check requires a lot more time and attention than sliding a credit card or clicking on the bank website. But this required level of mindfulness is not such a bad thing.

Originally by chance, and now by design, I make many of my charitable donations by check. Doing so gives me a few additional minutes to consider and appreciate the work the organization provides. I even try to write a few words of gratitude on the memo line: thank you for protecting the oceans, for advocating for Israel, for strengthening our community, for giving kids a great summer.

In ancient times, of course, there was no choice between check and credit. Purchases were made with gold and silver coins or through barter. The same was true for donations and sacrifices – people brought animals and grains to the Temple as offerings. With so much going on, the Priests and Levites had to be experts in efficiency just to keep things running smoothly (think of parking at Disneyworld). This time of year – the period from Passover to Shavuot -- was a particularly busy time.

In addition to the daily offerings and prescribed sacrifices for the pilgrimage festivals, there was the special grain offering brought on the second day of Passover. The offering was known as the omer, with the name taken from the unit of measure -- roughly 3/4 of a bushel -- required to fulfill the mitzvah. Curiously, however, bringing an omer of grain to the Temple was just the beginning of a process. For forty-nine days the Israelites were commanded to literally count the days, a count which terminated with the festival of Shavuot. But why the counting? One explanation offered by the sages is that it provided time for the Israelites to reflect on the meaning of the omer offering – a thank you of sorts for God’s many blessings.

Though we no longer have the ancient Temple to which to bring offerings, we continue to mark this seven-week period with the counting of the omer. As we pause daily to perform this ritual, I invite you to take a few minutes to think about the contributions you make – with check, credit card, or most valuably, with your time. Reflecting on how and where we share our resources allows us to reaffirm our commitment to various causes and ideals. Additionally, it offers us the opportunity to ensure that we are supporting, with our donations and with our actions, the values we espouse and hold most dear.

May the days of the omer be a time of giving and growth, learning and love, caring and kedushah.

Rabbi Joel

“Reflecting on how and where we share our resources allows us to reaffirm our commitment to various causes and ideals.”

TORAH STUDY SCHEDULE CHANGE
Due to Passover, Torah study will be held on the 2nd and 4th Sundays of April, April 11 and April 25

From the President

There is green in the trees, bushes are blossoming and around the edges of the lawns the grass has begun to grow. Spring is here in Pensacola. If you drive by the Temple you'll see that our renovation is taking hold and things are changing on the campus. You might have expected that our program would slow as a result of the campus activity, but you would be wrong. Shabbat services will continue in the sanctuary until the temperature forces us to move into an air conditioned facility. Rabbi Joel continues conducting early services at the beginning of each month at Azalea Trace. We are in the midst of studying Proverbs in Torah study, while Torah on Tap is still going strong. In a few days we will celebrate Passover Seder at the Pensacola Yacht Club. On April 10th we will have a Jazz Shabbat. If anything, our program grows stronger each month because of the hard work of our congregants and the leadership of our Rabbi.

It is not often that I have the privilege of commending one of our congregants, but every time his name comes up in conversation, I think of the word mensch. In April Dr. David Suhrbier will leave us to take a new position at Children's' Hospital in Chattanooga. His family will join him in June after school is out. He leaves behind memories of a wonderful physician, and a man dedicated to the well-being and care of our Temple children. He is the quiet hand who has prepared breakfast for our School For Jewish Living and participated in the governance of the Temple as a Board member for the past four years. His contributions were many and he will be sorely missed. For those who can't recall his face, you will always remember the wild colors of his tennis shoes. We also note that Jan Suhrbier has taught the pre-school age children in the School for Jewish Living. We wish them fair winds and following seas for the future.

As they planned for the Temple renovation, the committee steadfastly conducted a rolling set of priorities based upon our needs and their attendant costs. We knew that at some time a determination would have to be made about which items were possible and which were simply beyond our means. As construction progresses and decisions need to be made with regards to fixtures, furnishings, and other details, I would personally plead with those who haven't contributed to the renovation, as well as those who can give more, to help us to reach our goal. It is not just a renovation, but an investment in securing the future of Reform Judaism here in the greater Pensacola area. We need your help now!

I will be sending out a letter, as required in the bylaws, calling the annual congregational meeting for Sunday, May 17th. We will be holding the election of new board members and Temple officers. It will be a time to learn about the renovation, activities of your congregation, a new budget, and the new leadership that will take us into the future. Please mark your calendars for this important meeting. I look forward to seeing you there.

L'shalom,
Fred

Sisterhood Notes

Shalom from TBE Sisterhood!! Last month's luncheon was so much fun and such a great learning experience....thank you so much to Liz McCulley for the sharing her Sephardic charoset recipe and other food info and family Passover stories. And thanks to Rabbi Joel for keeping us entertained with Passover stories from around the world. A wonderful time was had by all!!

This month's luncheon, which will be held at Ever'man on Wednesday, April 15th at 11:45. The topic is alternative gardening, and Master Gardener, Marge Hiller will be sharing special planting tips with us....even if you don't garden, you will learn a lot of new things, so come join us for a springtime break.

Friday night, April 3rd is our annual Seder, this year to be held at the Yacht Club (due to Temple renovations). It will be our usual lovely event, made even more so by Rabbi Joel's service.

Our show, "Parody Tonight", is just around the corner – May 16th at Gulf Breeze Rec Center. All proceeds go to camp scholarships, and all laughs are yours to keep. Come see us singing Renee's original parodies (and we all know how funny I am, right????? But I digress....), staged to be, of course, hilarious (modesty is my middle name LOL), so you don't want to miss it. Ticket sales begin this month, and you will be getting plenty of info in advance.

Have a great month, and remember...

Life is a Cabaret!!!

Educator's Message: Jewish Music and Jewish Identity

Effective music has transformative power in the way we think, feel, and connect with others. Music can emotionally transport us to another time, another place. It can make us laugh with joy or cry out in pain. Music as social commentary can unite us, divide us, and inspire us to action. Music unites generations. Music can help us connect us with God, a stranger, a friend.

Music has always been an integral part of Judaism. We are taught that the angels sang at creation, Miriam danced with her timbrel, the blasts of the shofar brought down the walls of Jericho, David's harp soothed King Saul. In our time it may be the haunting tune of Kol Nidre, the upbeat Hava Nagilah, the familiar melodious Hinei Mah Tov, or Debbie Friedman's Mi Sheberach that touches our soul.

Music can shape one's Jewish identity from the earliest of ages. A young mother recently asked me what she can do at home to help foster Judaism with her son. My response was to include Judaism is everything you do, at story time, play time, craft time, cooking, and music time.

These days we all potentially hold music in our fingertips, literally in our phones. The key is to find the appropriate Jewish music and to engage with it consistently.

Repetition is involved in learning a skill and forming one's connections. Just as a child sings along with Rafi hundreds of times, he/she can sing along with Rick Recht. Most young families listen to children's music in the car, why not have Jewish children's music be part of the rotation? Joyful modern songs about how being Jewish is cool, songs about colors, numbers as well as Shabbat and the holidays can shape the foundation of a child's Jewish identity. Older students can listen to prayers and modern songs from camp just as easily as any song on the radio. Adults can browse the thousands of contemporary and traditional Jewish songs on www.oysongs.com just as easily as on iTunes. The key is making Jewish music a part of your daily life. This month we will have several opportunities to experience some new Jewish music. On Friday April 10, fuse your love of jazz with Jewish music at the Jazz Shabbat service. On Sunday April 12, Rabbi Neal Katz will be visiting our students and teaching a workshop on Jewish song writing. On Friday May 1 and Sunday May 3, Camp song-leader Nick May will once again fill our worship with spirited guitar music. May Jewish music be a part of your daily life, touching your heart and nourishing your soul.

L'Shalom,

Andrea

A Morning of Music with Rabbi Neal Katz

On Sunday, April 12 Temple Beth El and the School for Jewish Living are excited to welcome Rabbi Neal Katz of Tyler, Texas.

An accomplished musician and songwriter, Rabbi Katz will lead the older students in the "Midrash of Music" – a workshop exploring the influence biblical and rabbinic texts have on the writing of contemporary Jewish music.

At 11:30 the entire Temple Beth El community is invited to join Rabbi Katz and students from the School for Jewish Living for a wonderful concert featuring Rabbi Katz's original music.

Kitchen Kibbitz by Janet Schilling

As I write this column I am getting ready to travel to South Florida, or as it is known in my family, “Real Florida” to visit Logan’s mom, his brother, my brother and assorted cousins who will be in the area. But I will travel back to Pensacola for seder to be with my extended family of friends, as Passover would not be the same without the family connection. Logan’s family is not Jewish, so no chance for a seder with them, and my brother generally waits for an invitation from his extended family. So we find ourselves in an interesting situation. We will be in the most Jewishly populated area of Florida, but will return to “Lower Alabama” to enjoy a tradition that has been many years in the making.

While mulling all this over, I thought of one cousin who is traveling from North Jersey just so we can spend an evening together. We shared many seders at her mom’s house, and enjoyed all the food specialties of the Passover season. What comes to mind is my grandmother in the kitchen preparing to serve her matzoh ball soup and she always leaned her head into the dining room and asked: “one matzoh ball or two and do you want farfel?” For some reason, farfel is not always readily available in this neck of the woods. But I have planned to bring some back from Boca, because I am pretty sure I can find it there. We never used it other than a garnish for Sophie’s delicious soup, and that will always be the dearest memory, but I have plenty of cookbooks on my shelf and a quick search uncovered a mac and cheese alternative made with farfel and a basic farfel stuffing. I hope you have a chance to enjoy both, but if farfel is hard to find, perhaps we need to ask the local merchants to add it to their Passover list for next year. I wish you all a very happy Passover.

Basic Farfel Stuffing from the Golda Meir Hadassah 50th Anniversary Cookbook

3/4 c. chopped onion
1 c. diced celery
1/4 c. oil
4 c. matzoh farfel
1/4 c. chopped fresh parsley
1 egg
1 c. chicken broth
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp white pepper
1 tsp. paprika

In a large skillet, sauté the onion and celery in oil over low heat until tender. Add farfel; stir until lightly browned. Add the parsley. In a small bowl, beat the egg with chicken broth, salt, pepper and paprika. Stir this into the farfel, continue to cook over low heat until the liquid is absorbed.

Variation: Add mushrooms sautéed with onions and celery.

Farfel and Cheese from Joan Nathan’s Jewish Holiday Cookbook

4 large eggs
3 c. matzoh farfel
1/2 lb. cheddar cheese
1 1/2 c. sour cream
6 tbsp. butter or pareve margarine
2 c. milk
1 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp pepper

Beat 3 of the eggs and pour over the farfel. Mix well. Preheat the oven to 350 degrees and grease a casserole. Pour the farfel mixture into the casserole. Cut the cheddar cheese into a small dice. Add the cheese to the farfel. Using a spoon, add the sour cream in dollops and dot with butter or margarine. Mix together the milk, remaining egg, salt and pepper and pour it over the casserole. Bake covered for 30 minutes. Uncover and let brown for 10-15 minutes more.

New Advertising Policy for Bulletin

Temple Beth El now accepts ads for posting in the monthly bulletin from Temple members and those businesses that serve Temple Beth El. Examples of businesses that serve Temple Beth El are: Waters & Hibbert Funeral Home, Arch Henderson Memorials, Plant & Flower Boutique Florists, Happy Handymen, and cleaning ladies Dana and Doris.

The ads must be submitted by the 15th of the month in the form of a picture scan or a PDF to bulletin editor, Janet Schilling at: janet-schilling54@gmail.com. If the ad is commercially produced, creator permission must be included in writing with the initial ad submittal.

An editorial committee, which includes the Rabbi, will review and accept ads at its discretion prior to inclusion in the bulletin. The ad space will be available in 2 sizes: business card and quarter page. The number of ads accepted each month will be on a space available basis. The fee for monthly advertising will be $25 for a business card size ad and $50 for a quarter page size ad. The fee is due at the time of ad submittal.
