Cemetery Cleanup Scheduled

August 23, 9:00 am - 1:00 pm

I visited the cemetery with Charles Kraselsky last month to bury some of his family's religious books that were ruined by the flood. We then did a two man clean up, which helped a little. While cemeteries by definition are not cheery places, ours is rather sad. As Vice President of TBE and therefore chairman of the cemetery, I have scheduled a cemetery clean up day for Sunday, August 23 from 9-1, for anyone who wishes to help. Bring shovels, rakes, brooms, weed-eaters, blowers or anything else you think will help with this endeavor. I will provide drinks snacks and trash bags. This is a great opportunity for Youth Group involvement. In 4 hours I think 30 of us can transform this sacred resting spot. No need to RSVP. Just show up with gloves and motivation.

From the Rabbi

During college, when I lived in the Boston area, the local sports radio station would do a live remote from Fenway Park every February. Bundled up in hats, gloves, and who knows how many layers, the radio personalities stood in the midst of the New England winter to announce to Boston sports fans the official start of spring -- the moment the Red Sox's equipment truck pulled out for Spring Training in Fort Meyers, Florida. While to an outsider the event appears to be both unnecessary and ridiculous, it served a valuable purpose. The station's annual remote reminded those living through months of grey skies that a sunny summer of baseball was not far off. With pitchers and catchers reporting the following week, it was time to start learning about the year's promising prospects, to circle on the calendar the dates when the hated Yankees were in town, and to begin emotionally preparing for the inevitably tragic roller coaster ride of a Red Sox season (at the time the Red Sox had not won a World Series in nearly 80 years).

Like New Englanders turning their thoughts to baseball in February, it seems almost absurd to think about the High Holy Days in the midst of summer. But before we know it, Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur will be upon us and there is much that needs to be done. Fortunately, the Jewish calendar has ways of announcing the approach of these important dates, of letting us know that it is time to begin preparing.

One way the holidays are announced is that throughout month of Elul, the month that precedes Rosh Hashanah, Psalm 27 is traditionally included in morning and evening services and, on weekdays, the shofar is blown. Both Psalm 27, which contains the phrase, "Hear, O Eternal, when I cry aloud; Have mercy on me, answer me," and the penetrating sound of the shofar remind us that it is time to look deep into ourselves, to begin asking God and those we have wronged for forgiveness, and in turn, to grant forgiveness to others.

Another important event on the calendar is the Selichot service. As we learn in Mahzor Vitry, an eleventh century work describing observance of holidays, the Selichot service takes place late at night. The prayers, which focus on asking God for forgiveness, are sung to their High Holy Day melodies. In many ways Selichot is a "best of" mix of the High Holy Days and I find the service invaluable in helping set the right mindset going into Rosh Hashanah. Selichot falls this year on September 5th and I hope you will make a point of attending. The service begins at 9:00 pm and is preceded by a special movie and discussion starting at 7:00 pm.

With casual and carefree afternoons at the beach filling our thoughts, if not actually our days, it is hard to think about the traditions and demands of Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur. But taking time before they arrive to prepare ourselves, especially emotionally, can make a big difference in how we experience the High Holy Days. It may feel funny to prepare for Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur during the dog days of summer, just like it seems ridiculous to get excited for baseball in February, but these early starts make all the difference.

Rabbi Joel

"...before we know it, Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur will be upon us and there is much that needs to be done."

From the President

Sometimes while driving, just for kicks, I'll ask the nice lady inside my GPS to find particular places, for instance, nearest Thai restaurants or nearest golf courses. Usually her listings are impressively precise and other times, they're rather humorous. Recently, while driving in Pensacola, I verbally requested, "Find nearest synagogue" and I promptly received a listing of the nearest City Halls. I chuckled and then for even more fun, I tried, "Find nearest temple". For that request, I received a listing of the nearest campgrounds. I later reflected on these listings and realized that the nice lady may need her hearing checked, but also determined maybe she wasn't so far off in her interpretation after all. Most synagogues have a Board of Directors which runs somewhat like a City Hall. Through the years, Temple Beth El has even had several mayors serving on its board including most recently Gulf Breeze Mayor Matt Dannheisser and Mayor Beverly Zimmern who preceded Matt. Temples also have notable similarities to Jewish summer camps. Together we pray, play, sing, dance, eat, perform kind deeds, learn new skills and make lasting friendships.

Temple Beth El, like City Halls and summer camps, cannot function without its volunteers. Thank you to all the volunteers throughout the 139 years of Temple Beth El's history. Currently, we have many who continue to dream and selflessly do good deeds for the congregation and the community. Amongst those, we thank Rabbi Joel Fleekop who goes far beyond his rabbinic duties; Andrea Fleekop, Director of the School for Jewish Living, who also provides so much to the congregation and community beyond her school duties; Terry Gross, our Vice President, chairs the Administrative and Cemetery Committees and organizes the large Poker Tournament fundraiser each year; Cindy Gross is President of the Pensacola Jewish Federation; Carol Kahn Rosenblatt is our Treasurer and chair of the Finance Committee; Pat Braunstien is the board Secretary and Chair of the Communications Committee; Fred Levin is our Past President; Renee Eilen and Marty Lisner, serve as our Sisterhood Co-Presidents, Steve Eilen is our Brotherhood President; Sydney McAbee is our newly elected Nominating Committee Chair; Matt Dannheisser and Rodney Rich serve as the Renovations Committee Co-Chairs; Danny Zimmern is our House Committee Chair; Jaime Montero is creating a Response Team to enhance temple security; Bill Kuhhirte has spent hours learning hymns to sing at services at Azalea Trace; Martin Lewis agreed to continue serving on the By-laws Committee; Alice Klein is the Chair of the Adult Education Committee; Linda Armacost serves as our Social Action Committee Chair; new board member, Jeanne Boyle, is our Membership Committee Chair; Ray Engel continues as Chair of the Ritual Committee; Allen Miller is our Library Committee Chair, Janet Schilling continues as the Editor of the Temple bulletin and Rich Cacace is Temple Beth El's Webmaster. Each is doing sacred work for Temple Beth El.

Educator's Message: Splash Into the New Year

Shalom and welcome to the upcoming school year 2015-2016. I hope you are enjoying a pleasant summer and gearing up for an exciting school year.

School for Jewish Living registration materials are now available online at www.templebethelofpensacola.org.

EARLY BIRD DEAL: REGISTER BY AUGUST 15 & SAVE $25 PER CHILD

We will Splash into the New Year with a family pool party on August 30, 12-2pm at the home of Ed and Nichole Friedland, 4750 Slaback, Pensacola.

Temple construction is in full swing. It is very exciting to watch the progress and envision all the exciting new features, including a state of the art new playground for the children and an amazing new youth room. With construction scheduled to continue into the fall, our two September sessions will be held at Creative Learning Academy, 3151 Hyde Park Road, Pensacola. This year we will also be joining together for Jewish experiences outside of the weekly Sunday timeframe, such as special Shabbat and Holiday programs.

Again, it is a very exciting time in the life of Temple Beth El. Before we know it, the school year and the High Holiday season will arrive. The Education Committee, teachers and assistants, Rabbi Joel and I look forward to a new year of memorable Jewish experiences with your family.

It takes a community to raise a Jewish child. Volunteers and support are needed to make our school a success. If you have any questions or are interested in serving as a teacher, substitute, member of the education committee or kitchen, music, or library volunteer, please contact me at andreafleekop@hotmail.com.

Following the screening, Rabbi Fleekop will lead a discussion on responsibility, the limits of forgiveness and generosity, and life in an unpredictable world.

Following the program Selichot services will be held in the sanctuary. Services will begin at approximately 9pm.

Federation Will Welcome New Schlichta

The Jewish community will be welcoming Tal Izhakov to Pensacola at the end of August. Tal is coming from Afula, Israel to serve as our Schlichta for the next year. Tal has been employed as an elementary school teacher in Israel, working with first, second and third grade students. She served in the Education and Youth Corps in the military as a soldier-teacher working in schools and a day care center for children from underprivileged backgrounds. She also has additional educational experience ranging from practical teaching to participation in the “Hillel Clinic” at Oranim College. Tal has also spent four years in volunteer service to “Akim” Israel: The National Association for the Habilitation of Children and Adults with Intellectual Disabilities.

We are excited to have Tal join our community and look forward to learning about Israel through her experiences. We hope you will join us in welcoming Tal to Pensacola later this month. A party to celebrate her arrival will be announced at a later date.

CHAI Discussion Group Wants Your Input

Kitchen Kibbitz by Janet Schilling

The Schilling Bed and Breakfast has been operating at 100% capacity this summer. We were so happy to have a two week visit with Jordan and Candice, who recently returned from New Zealand. No sooner than they had left, Logan's brother passed through and shortly thereafter, my brother paid us a week-long visit. Great food and drink and did I mention desserts were on the agenda each day. And with all that catching up to do, the exercise program had to be put on hold! All that family love comes with a price which is verifiable and can be recorded on the bathroom scale! So now it is back to the business of healthy eating and shedding a few unwanted pounds.

One of my favorite breakfast recipes in the summer and is always on the B&B menu, is Ricotta Blueberry Pancakes. They are delicious and light (and by that I mean texturally, not calorically!) and a must when fresh blueberries are in season. And you might think that dieting has to be boring and flavorless, but not when you try some of the recipes from the "Zero Belly Diet" plan by David Zinczenko. All are wonderful and tasty and easy to prepare. As a matter of fact, I use many of them year round, not just when dieting becomes a necessity.

So I hope you enjoy the pancakes, but remember they can always be followed by a tasty salad or soup if the need arises.

Blueberry Ricotta Pancakes

1 1/2 c. flour
 1 tsp. baking powder
 1/4 tsp. baking soda
 1/4 tsp. salt
 1 1/2 Tbsp. sugar
 4 Tbsp. melted butter
 1/2 c. ricotta cheese
 1 large egg
 1/2 c. orange juice
 1/3 c. milk
 1/2 tsp. vanilla extract
 3/4-1 c. blueberries
 1 to 2 tsp. finely grated orange zest, optional
 Cooking oil spray

Note: This batter will be thick; not the pourable kind but it bakes up light and delicious.

In a bowl, combine the flour with baking powder, soda, salt, and sugar. In another bowl, whisk together the butter, ricotta cheese, egg, orange juice, milk, and vanilla. Combine the wet and dry ingredients just until blended. Gently stir in the blueberries and orange zest, if using. Spray a skillet or griddle with cooking spray over medium heat. Spoon a small amount of batter onto the hot skillet (I use an ice cream scoop) and spread gently with the back of a spoon. Turn when golden on one side. Continue cooking till golden on other side. Serve with blueberry preserves, blueberry or maple syrup. Serves 4

Going Lentil Soup

1 Tbsp. olive oil
 1 medium onion, minced
 2 cloves garlic, minced
 1 Tbsp. fresh minced ginger
 1/2 jalapeno, minced
 2 medium carrots, peeled and diced
 1 c. dried green lentils
 1/4 tsp. cumin
 1 bay leaf
 8 oz. lite coconut milk
 3 c. low sodium vegetable stock or water
 1 Tbsp. reduced sodium soy sauce
 1 Tbsp. red wine vinegar
 Salt and pepper to taste
 Heat olive oil in a medium pot on medium heat. Add onion, garlic, ginger, jalapeno, and carrots and sauté until the onions are soft and translucent, about 3 minutes. Add the lentils, cumin, bay leaf, coconut milk and stock or water. Turn the heat to low and simmer until the liquid has reduced and the lentils are tender, about 30 minutes. Season with the soy sauce, vinegar, and salt and pepper to taste. If you like use a hand blender to gently puree the soup for a thicker texture.
 Makes 6 one cup servings
