Rabbi Joel Fleekop

“As the light of the Hanukkah menorah reminds us, we are charged with being a light unto the nations.”

From the Rabbi

Adding Light to Our Lives

How do you light the Hanukkah menorah?

With the Festival of Lights nearly upon us, many of us will again be asking this question. While we can turn to the modern convenience of the internet to find the answer¹, the question itself is part of an ancient debate chronicled in the Talmud.

Masechet Shabbat, 21b records a disagreement over how to light the Hanukkah candles between the disciples of two of Judaism’s greatest sages, Hillel and Shammai. According to the students of Shammai, one should light the shammes and all eight branches of the hanukkiah on the first night, reducing the number of lights by one each night of the holiday. This, it is explained, follows the pattern of the sacrifices for Sukkot, the pilgrimage festival that inspired the first Hanukkah².

The students of Hillel argue the opposite; that on the first night one branch of the hanukkiah is lit, building up to the final night of Hanukkah when all eight branches are kindled. The reason given to support this argument is that in matters of holiness, one should add rather diminish.

Tradition, of course, follows the teaching of Hillel, and so as the holiday progresses, our hanukkiah grows brighter and brighter. The growing light of the hanukkiah is especially powerful because the holiday is celebrated during what is physically the darkest time of the year.

The past month has been not only a physical but also spiritually dark time. The recent wave of terror attacks in Israel, Paris, and around the globe have left many of us outraged, angry, and disgusted. There is a threat that these heated emotions will consume our optimism and ideals.

As the light of the Hanukkah menorah reminds us, we are charged with being an ohr la-goyim, a light unto the nations. May we fulfill this sacred charge by remaining faithful and committed to our values, even in dark times.

May we individually and collectively strive to create a world that, like the hanukkiah, grows brighter each day.

Rabbi Joel

¹ You can find complete instructions for lighting the Hanukkah menorah, including recordings of the Hanukkah blessings at: <http://www.reformjudaism.org/practice/prayers-blessings/hanukkah-blessings>.

² Many scholars believe the first Hanukkah was a “delayed” celebration of Sukkot. The Israelites were unable to observe the pilgrimage festival during its normal fall season as the Temple had been defiled.

Shabbat Hanukkah
December 11, 6:00 pm

Bring your hanukkiah and join us in the sanctuary for a special Shabbat Hanukkah service. Together we will sing holiday favorites, share Shabbat, and of course enjoy a delicious oneg of suf-ganyot.

This “family friendly” service promises to be fun for worshippers of all ages.

Gavin Schwartz to Become a Bar Mitzvah

The congregation is invited to celebrate with Gavin P. Schwartz as he is called to the Torah on December 5, 2015, with services beginning at 10am.

Gavin’s parents are Robin and Jeff Schwartz and his brother is Noah, age 11. Gavin is in the 8th grade at E.D.S. in Pensacola. His favorite subjects are Algebra and History. Gavin is a student of Tai Kwon Do and is a 2nd Degree Black Belt. In his free time, he enjoys hanging out with his brother and friends, playing on the X-Box and having Nerf wars. He has been volunteering at the Ronald McDonald House for his Bar Mitzvah project. On his journey to become a Bar Mitzvah, he has learned the joy and importance of helping those in need.

From the President

Soon it will be Hanukkah and although Hanukkah is considered a “minor”

Jewish holiday, it has become a favorite and is highly celebrated. Rather than regarding the Festival of Lights as “the Jewish Christmas”, it is a time for celebration of Jewish identity. Hanukkah, meaning “dedication” reminds us to rededicate ourselves to our faith, our family, our Temple, and the entire Jewish community. It is a time to stand tall against forces which attempt to destroy Judaism. It is a time to rededicate our commitment to generations past to keep the flame alive.

Our new construction and renovations stand as proof to a commitment to the future of Judaism in the Pensacola area. It is a gift of appreciation to those before us and a promise of support to future generations. This major project simply could not be possible without your financial, emotional and physical support of our beloved Temple.

Within a few months the renovations should be complete and we will, in a sense, be rededicating our Temple. With your help we’ll have a grand celebration. This is a very exciting time for Temple Beth El, but much work needs to be done before we can celebrate and have full use of our beautiful facility. Please volunteer and commit to do your share. Continued financial support is needed particularly for furnishings. Physical help is also needed to empty boxes of stored items and then to fill many shelves, drawers and walls. Every dollar donated and every box unpacked helps assure a brighter future for Reform Judaism in Northwest Florida and beyond.

Enjoy Hanukkah at home with your family and friends and also at the Shabbat service, Friday December 11th. In addition, because we are unable to have a Hanukkah dinner at the Temple this year, join us at the home of Terry and Cindy Gross for a Hanukkah dinner and Havdalah celebration Saturday evening December 12th. Please bring a covered-dish for the dinner. Sisterhood will provide fried chicken and Brotherhood will provide the latkes. Nick May will lead us in song. Bring your family, friends and potential new members! I was very touched recently by a comment made by one of our newest members. She said to me, “I consider Temple membership an investment in a community.” Join your Jewish community in celebrating Hanukkah together.

My husband, Chuck, and I wish you and yours a happy Hanukkah filled with love!

L’Shalom,

Janet Kahn

Sisterhood Notes

Shalom, everyone. Ladies, did you know that when you become a member of Sisterhood, you also are part of a larger organization –WRJ, Women of Reform Judaism. We thought you might like to learn a little about this wonderful organization.

Hanukkah is this month, and WRJ has an innovative Hanukkah gift idea that not only will help you check off those hard to buy for people on your list, but more importantly helps stock the shelves of the libraries in domestic violence shelters. For each donation you make, a card will be sent acknowledging the donation to the recipient and, more importantly, a book will be sent to the library of a domestic violence shelter. Interested? Contact Renee and she'll give you more info.

At the WRJ Assembly, WRJ women passed a resolution against distracted driving. It calls upon its sisterhoods to have members pledge not to text or use a hand held phone while driving, and to launch a congregation-wide campaign to have others, including adults, teens and soon-to-be drivers, to take the pledge. We call upon each of you reading this article to take the pledge yourself, and get at least ten other people to make the same promise.

Another issue being addressed by WRJ is that of Syrian refugees. As it says in Exodus, "You shall not oppress a stranger, for you know the feelings of the stranger, having yourselves been strangers in the Land of Egypt." WRJ urges sisterhoods to call on the governments of the U.S. and Canada to admit refugees as soon as possible, and to assist in settling refugees in their respective communities.

Our sisterhood has always been dedicated to issues such as these, and we welcome any feedback of any new ideas by which to facilitate resolving these difficult issues. We don't realize, sometimes, how lucky we are to have each other. You are not alone...Sisterhood will always be there for you. We propose that we reach out beyond the borders of our own congregation and make that statement true for everyone.

And remember,
Life is a Cabaret

Help Put Our House Back In Order

As you recall, early this year crews of wonderful congregants pitched in to box and store materials in the library for safekeeping during the renovation. The time has finally come to announce that in early January we will begin the happy task of moving back into the kitchen, social hall, Sunday School and Sisterhood gift shop areas as each reaches completion. The kitchen will be the first area we will handle! I am organizing teams of volunteers to handle the process. All hands are welcome and encouraged to help. If you can volunteer for even an hour or two, the move will flow well.

The old saying "Many hands make light work" surely applies. Reward yourself with a feeling of accomplishment as we joyfully celebrate moving back to normal. Please contact Pat Braunstien at 850 598-9718 or via e-mail at sidandpatb@earthlink.net to become part of the experience. There will be food and a lot of laughter and fun!

Educator's Message: Sharing Judaism

Educator's Message:

Every December I enjoy sharing Hanukkah with Jewish children and their non Jewish classmates. Since moving to Pensacola, I have gone into both my daughters' classrooms each year, educating their peers (and their teachers) about Hanukkah. For most, this is their first exposure to Hanukkah.

It is also their first taste of Judaism. With latkes and chocolate gelt, I ensure that it is a sweet taste. So much so and after hearing about 8 nights of presents, I have been asked on several occasions, "Can I be Jewish too?"

Children (and most adults I encounter) are always curious about the story of Hanukkah and how it is celebrated today. They listen to the story of the Maccabees intently, watch with wonder as I light the Hanukkiyah, and play dreidel with great enthusiasm.

While Hanukkah is a Jewish holiday, its messages of hope, light, and miracles can bring joy to all. The struggle of the underdog and the faith in the greater good resonate with people of all backgrounds.

Sharing the joy of Judaism with others is both an honor and a great responsibility. Teaching others about our rich heritage and taking the time to learn about other people and their traditions enriches our understanding of one another. The ripple effects are endless.

In this new year of 2016, may we create opportunities to share the joys of Judaism with family, friends, colleagues, and community members.

L'Shalom,
Andrea

JEWISH MEN'S BOOK CLUB

TBE SANCTUARY
"LIFE IN A JAR" BY JACK MAYER
PRESENTER- RICK GORDON

During World War II, Irena Sendler, a Polish Catholic social worker, organized a rescue network of fellow social workers to save 2,500 Jewish children from certain death in the Warsaw ghetto. Incredibly, after the war her heroism, like that of many others, was suppressed by communist Poland and remained virtually unknown for 60 years. Unknown, that is, until three high school girls from an economically depressed, rural school district in southeast Kansas stumbled upon a tantalizing reference to Sendler's rescues, which they fashioned into a history project, a play they called Life in a Jar. Their innocent drama was first seen in Kansas, then the Midwest, then New York, Los Angeles, Montreal, and finally Poland, where they elevated Irena Sendler to a national hero, championing her legacy of tolerance and respect for all people. Life in a Jar: The Irena Sendler Project is a Holocaust history and more. It is the inspirational story of Protestant students from Kansas, each carrying her own painful burden, each called in her own complex way to the history of a Catholic woman who knocked on Jewish doors in the Warsaw ghetto and, in Sendler's own words, "tried to talk the mothers out of their children." Inspired by Irena Sendler, they are living examples of the power of one person to change the world and models for young people everywhere.

Kitchen Kibbitz by Janet Schilling

I was inspired by last month's awesome interfaith Thanksgiving service to consider my blessings. What a wonderful evening and what a wonderful result. Too often we move day to day with the tedium of work and errands and family demands, to stop and appreciate how blessed we are.

Aside from being blessed with good health, a wonderful husband, and freedom from financial worries, I, like any parent, feel particularly blessed that Jordan and Candice have found each other. I do believe, though that I have raised a "hippy" and for that I am proud. Jordan and Candice have embraced all that is natural and have a great respect for the environment. The ideals that I held close in the 70's still make sense, though I don't think I could live in a "tiny house" like they might be planning in the future. One of their passions is hiking which may also include some climbing up the side of a mountain from time to time. They have hiked and climbed all over the world. And that includes sleeping out under the stars in some very exotic locales from New Zealand to South America and now in Vancouver. I take for granted that they are eating on these great adventures, but I never thought to ask what, until now. So Candice sent me a couple of their favorite recipes and they can be adapted to your home kitchen, or backyard, or perhaps in a faraway place under the stars. Enjoy!

Grilled Montana Trout
 2 trout, cleaned and head removed
 3 tablespoons cold butter, thinly sliced
 6 sprigs fresh rosemary
 1/2 teaspoon chopped fresh rosemary
 1 teaspoon chopped fresh parsley
 salt and pepper to taste
 2 cloves garlic, minced
 1 lemon, halved and thinly sliced
Directions
 Place each trout onto a square of aluminum foil. Open them up so that the flesh is facing upwards. On one side of each fish, season with salt and pepper, half of the garlic, half of the chopped rosemary and half of the parsley. Top each fish with thin slices of butter, 3 rosemary sprigs and a few slices of lemon. Squeeze one of the remaining lemon slices over each fish. Enclose the seasoning inside each fish and wrap securely with the sheet of aluminum foil. Wrap each fish in an additional piece of aluminum foil.

Place fish in the coals of a campfire or on a grill over a flame and cook for about 7 minutes on each side. If you can easily stick a fork into the fish, it is done. Cooking time will vary depending on the size of your fish and the fire. Allow to cool for a few minutes before opening to serve.

Ember Roasted Corn on the Cob
 Gently pull husks away from corn (do not detach from cob); remove silk. Pull husks up over corn to cover kernels. Secure husks tightly with string or a strip of foil. Soak in a large pot of room-temperature water for at least 15 minutes and up to 1 hour. Meanwhile, remove grill grate and build a hot fire in a charcoal grill, allowing fire to burn down until coals are completely covered with ash (or use the ash-covered coals remaining after grilling a main course).

Push coals to one side of grill. Arrange 3 ears of corn in a single layer on cleared side of grill; cover corn with coals. Repeat on the other side with remaining coals and corn, spreading coals evenly over corn. Roast corn until most of the kernels are deep golden brown, about 10 minutes (some kernels will be flecked with dark brown spots). Remove husks; use a pastry brush to flick off any ashes. Serve with butter and salt.

From Tal

Dear Community,
I can't believe I am here almost three months! I already know Starbucks, Marshalls and the best beach I can find in the USA, so I guess I am not a "new shlichah" anymore.

Last month we commemorated "Yitzhak Rabin" and supported the idea of Israel being a democratic state. We also explored together Israel's cultural diversity and enjoyed these celebrations of colors, languages, music and art. Our next Café Israel will be on December 14th. If you have any suggestions for a theme you would like to discuss, please let me know!

I want you to know that I really appreciate that you come to these events! It gives me so much motivation and satisfaction! You can be sure that I am learning from you even more than what I teach you!

In these days we are trying to create a youth group of all the community. I really believe that these kids are our future! I cannot wait to start! We are planning a cultural event on December 28th for you. Please look for further information about it.

Feel free to contact me and invite me to meet you. I want to get to know as many families as I can and to be involved in your life.

Have a wonderful month, full of smiles and joy! Tal
