Shabbat and Speaker: Arielle Di Porto on the Jews of France

On Friday February 13 at 7:00 pm, Temple Beth El, in cooperation with the Pensacola Jewish Federation, will welcome Arielle Di Porto for a very important and informative Shabbat experience. Following worship, Di Porto, the Jewish Agency's Director of Europe and Middle East Aliyah, will speak on the challenges and realities confronting the Jewish community in France. Di Porto is especially knowledgeable of the French Jewish community, having previously served as Director of Aliyah and Integration of the Jewish Agency's French and North Africa region.

Born and raised in Morocco, Di Porto attended French language schools. Following her move to Israel at 17, Di Porto studied Arabic and Mathematics at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. A long-time employee at the Jewish Agency, she played a critical role in the extremely sensitive aliyah of Jews from Ethiopia, Cuba, Syria, Pakistan, Iran, and Yemen.

We are very fortunate to have a speaker so prominent and knowledgeable of recent world events. We hope you will join us in welcoming Arielle Di Porto to Pensacola and learning more about the challenges facing the Jews of France, the diaspora's second largest community.

Friday, February 6,
6:00 pm

We are excited to welcome Nick May, Head Song Leader at Henry S. Jacob's Camp at Temple Beth El on Friday, February 6.

Led by Nick and his guitar, we will share in music-filled worship, offering us a taste of what our young people experience each Shabbat at Jacob's camp. This special Shabbat service will also feature the participation of students from the 5 - 7 grade class of Temple Beth El's School for Jewish Living.

Following services a dessert oneg will be held in the sanctuary vestibule. Please note that due to construction, there will not be a covered-dish dinner.

In addition to his February visit, Nick will be joining us for worship on Friday, March 6 and Friday, May 1.

Rabbi Joel Fleekop

“As we journey through this period of construction, may we be blessed with the strength that comes with flexibility...”

From the Rabbi

Strong Like a Reed
“Be pliable like the reed, not rigid like the cedar.”
Babylonian Talmud, Taanit 20b

Commenting on this teaching, attributed to Rabbi Eliezer, our sages explain that while a cedar tree is hard and heavy, it is the light and flexible reed that is best able to withstand the strongest squalls and fiercest storms. Similarly, it is those individuals who are pliable, who can adjust to the changing winds and tempests of life, who are ultimately the strongest.

I am not sure if Rabbi Eliezer ever lived through a renovation project, but as we enter the construction phase of our Temple Renovation and Restoration, his advice could not be more germane.

I am happy to share that the contract with Greenhut Construction is signed and that work is beginning. Thank you to all the volunteers who, over the past two weeks, packed up and prepared the facility.

This is an exciting time for our congregation and when the project is complete, our Temple community will be positioned for an even stronger and brighter future. But during the months of construction, the strength we will need is that of the reed – the strength that comes with flexibility.

With the start of the initial phase of construction we no longer have use of the Max L. Bear Auditorium, kitchen, and youth room. As a result, Torah study and childcare will be moving to the school building. Shabbat onegs will be held in the vestibule at the back of the sanctuary. Access to both buildings will be through the doors on Palafox Street.

It is anticipated that we will have use of the sanctuary for a few more months. At some point in the spring, it will be necessary to move Shabbat services off site, where they will remain through the summer. Once these details are known, they will be shared with the congregation.

While construction requires us to move and adjust some programming, it also provides an opportunity for us to think outside the box and experiment with some new ideas. In the coming months look for details on adult-education field trips, Shabbat Under the Stars, and social programming away from the Temple campus.

As always, we will keep you informed, via the bulletin and the weekly email, of upcoming events and locations. Please also check the Temple Beth El Facebook Group for updates and photos on the progress of construction. If you are not yet a member of the Temple Beth El of Pensacola Facebook Group, now is a great time to join.

In Midrash Tanhuma our rabbis teach that a cluster of reeds held together is far stronger than an individual blade. As we journey through this period of construction, may we be blessed with the strength that comes with flexibility, and the even greater strength that comes from being together in community.

Rabbi Joel

Save the Date
Steve Lewis and his magical guitar return to Temple Beth El. Please join us for a musically spiritual Shabbat. Friday, February 27 7:00 pm We are delighted to have our very musical friend return to Temple and enhance our Shabbat worship.

From the President

Our forebears were committed to erecting a building for Temple Beth El in 1878. They held a common vision that included the construction of a Temple that would serve as a place of worship and a center of Reform Jewish culture here in Pensacola. Ten families founded Temple Beth El in 1876. By 1900 they were a congregation of over 100 people. Considering their initial membership, the financial burden of building the Temple was considerable. Yet they committed and prevailed. Following fires in 1895, and again in 1929, the congregation rallied to rebuild their temple. In 1931 our current building at the corner of Palafox and Cervantes Streets was built for slightly over $41,000.00. Our congregation believes in our religious ideals, customs, literature, and holy language that have been handed down from generation to generation for more than four thousand years. Each generation of Temple Beth El Jews is charged with maintaining our Temple and providing for the future of Reform Judaism here in greater Pensacola.

Early in 2014 a renovation committee formed to examine what changes were needed to be made to make our Temple Beth El campus more welcoming and accommodating to our congregation and for those that will follow us. The committee is the hardest working group of dedicated Jews I have had the privilege of serving with. The committee took into consideration the hard work of the long range planning task force, reports from past Shabbatonim and the results of both face to face and group meetings to determine what areas needed to be improved during the renovation. Our donors were generous beyond belief. As a result, we engaged Quina Grundhoeffer Architects and builder, Bill Greenhut. The committee formulated a list of those areas we needed to renovate in order to make the campus more welcoming and accommodating. Then the architect and the Greenhut construction team worked with the renovation committee to achieve a plan and schedule for the construction.

As a result of a year's effort, I signed a contract with Greenhut Construction for the renovation of Temple Beth El Campus. We expect the construction to commence this month. Meanwhile, a group of volunteers, plus our cleaning crew and maintenance team packed up the Temple to facilitate the contractor's early access. There will be more information on the construction and we will endeavor to keep you all informed. We plan to continue to hold services in the sanctuary for a few more months with "light" onegs held in the front foyer. We will not have pot luck dinners following our 6:00 p.m. services during this time. Alas, the kitchen will be out of action for some time to come. Without going into details, we will be looking at new offices for Rabbi Joel and Kathy, a new kitchen, elevator and other changes to the sanctuary, Max L. Bear Auditorium, and a new lobby with connectivity between the two buildings. We hope that the majority of the renovation will be completed in time for the High Holy Days.

When the renovation is complete there will be a new President and Board in office. I mention this because it represents an unbroken line of Reform Jews who have had the privilege of serving Temple Beth El Congregation. Their task remains to ensure Reform Judaism continues here in greater Pensacola.

Sisterhood Notes

Shalom, y'all. Well, we painted with a twist in January – yep, several Sisterhood artists (and some of us who don't know a paintbrush from a toothbrush) got together on a Saturday night for wine, food and picture painting. Although some paintings may have come out a bit better than some others (ok, mine was virtually unrecognizable), we had a great time doing something way off the beaten path.

February is more of a "let's learn how to take better care of ourselves" month, and to that end we will be lunching at Ever'man's on February 18th at 11:30 a.m. Expert nutritionist Ellen Stubenhaus will talk with us about Shmirat HaGoof – caring for our body. (Not that I particularly care for mine, but that's another topic altogether.) Come join us for food, friends and fun...with the Temple renovations just getting underway, it's another way we can all stay together even though we will be partially sans building.

And speaking of staying together, I ask again that if you have not yet become a member of Sisterhood, it's never too late. Now more than ever before it is important that we stay strong as a group, establishing ourselves as leaders of the congregation and the community. And being an active member, accomplishes several things – satisfaction for you, a great role model for your kids, and all the support and caring you could ask for in good times and bad. We all need each other, so let's all bond into one important Jewish voice in the community.

We have begun our rehearsals for Parody Tonight, our show on May 16th. This year it will be held at Gulf Breeze Community Center, and we need your help, especially behind the scenes. Contact me at rmoore40@yahoo.com if you can help with props, setting up tables, organizing food, etc. Camp scholarships are on the line here, and so I ask all of you, especially those of you whose children will benefit directly from these scholarships, to pitch in.

Remember, Life is a Cabaret!!

Sisterhood Chuppah Project Comes to an End

Our Chuppah project started in the fall of 2012 as a way of drawing our members together in a joint effort to create something lasting and beautiful for our congregation.

In the Spring of 2013 with several versions of the Star of David and other designs, Marty Lisner started talking to Sisterhood members about sewing a "square or side piece." The following women joined in the Chuppah project by creating a piece for the Chuppah: Pat Bowes, Pat Braunstien, Colleen Cacace, Lynn Cacace, Lucille Foley, Suzi Gordon, Alice Klein, Rose Kuhhirte, Janet Levin, Marty Lisner, Cindi Montero, Gloria Nix, Penny Phillips, Pamn Ravenscroft, Janet Schilling, and Marie Siskind. Every one of these women created a unique and special embroidery piece to add to the Chuppah.

Some of the women were sewing whirlwinds and created multiple pieces. Since some of our participants are embroidery experts, they were able to accomplish their tasks easily. For those of us who were embroidery beginners, we sought the expertise of Pamn Ravenscroft and began a sewing circle. Creating the Chuppah has indeed brought some of our Sisterhood members closer together.

On Saturday, January 24th, 2015, at a Havdallah service held at the Merritt's home, Sisterhood presented the finished Chuppah, which Janet Schilling had carefully stitched together. Now, we all wait hopefully for a wedding to see the Chuppah in action.

(If any participant names have been left out, it is entirely the responsibility of Marty Lisner and she apologizes for the omission.)

Educator's Message: Mitzvah Day

On Sunday, January 18, School for Jewish Living students participated in our 2nd Annual Mitzvah Day. After learning about the connection between Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Day/civil rights activism and the mitzvah of pursuing justice for all, our students engaged in acts of justice.

This year we focused our attention on four projects. First, our families brought in gently used toys and books to be donated to children in crisis. Second, our students designed special get well cards for Rabbi Joel to deliver to those in our congregation who are ill or recovering from surgery. Third, our students created care packages of appreciation for local firefighters and police officers. Students assembled Temple Beth El reusable bags with lots of snacks (brought in by students) and letters of appreciation for keeping us safe. Each family took one bag home with them and delivered it to a station. One mother commented, "My son said his favorite part of the day was taking the goodie bag to the fire station and telling them thank you for keeping his community safe. He also told them thank you for being brave. I appreciate you organizing the event and helping my son understand the purpose of giving back."

Our fourth project took place outside of Temple. Our students, from age three to sixteen, suited up in plastic gloves and split into small groups of older and younger children. The older child held a garbage bag and we walked to the local park, located two blocks from the Temple. Students collected trash along the walk and at the park. After disposing the trash, students, teachers, and parent volunteers had time to enjoy lunch and the park together.

Learning about the importance of mitzvot and tikkun olam (repairing the world) combined with social action projects is something any person, young or older, can do. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said, "Everybody can be great... because anybody can serve. You don't have to have a college degree to serve. You don't have to make your subject and verb agree to serve. You only need a heart full of grace. A soul generated by love."

May our children's actions continue to inspire us to serve our congregation and our community.

L'Shalom,

Andrea

Tu BiSh'vat or the "New Year of the Trees" is Jewish Arbor Day. Originally an agricultural festival, it is celebrated in modern times with a seder, similar to the Passover seder. The holiday also has become a tree-planting festival in Israel, in which Israelis and Jews around the world plant trees in honor or in memory of loved ones and friends.

This year Tu BiSh'vat occurs on Feb. 3/4.

A Story for Tu BiSh'vat

Title: The Apple Tree's Discovery
 Author: Peninnah Schram and Rachayl Eckstein Davis
 Illustrator: Wendy W. Lee
 Publisher: Kar-Ben
 Intended for Ages: 4-5 years

A little apple tree in the middle of a forest of majestic oaks wants more than anything else to have stars in its branches, as the oaks seem to have. God advises the apple tree to be content as it is and, eventually, the little tree makes a happy discovery.

Kitchen Kibbitz by Janet Schilling

It's February - a special month in the Schilling household. Logan and I both celebrate birthdays this month. However, that is not why it stands out. This is usually the month when we both realize that we forgot the word "moderation" during the holidays!!! But it is very difficult to try to restrict calories now, especially when I would love to get out the butter and the chocolate and for Logan, even the peanut butter, and create a wonderful birthday treat. We will try to control ourselves, but I am pretty sure we will allow the indulgence and tack on a few extra miles of walking or running the following day!

I did however, find a recipe that I have made a couple of times, and each time it has been met with rave reviews. So I think it is a good one to share it with you. It is one that you can put away for Passover or enjoy now. And honestly, since it is made with only the egg white and just a bit of flour (please substitute matzoh cake meal for Passover) I don't think it is too caloric. Of course the drizzle of chocolate can be explained by using a good quality dark chocolate which is filled with antioxidants, right?

These coconut macaroons are easy and quick to make. The recipe comes together in one bowl and no mixer is required, just a stir with a spoon. They are described on the website, "Chef in Training", as the most perfect, delicious and chewy cookies, and I must agree. I hope you enjoy these coconut macaroons.

Coconut Macaroons from chef-in-training.com

Ingredients

5 1/3 c. sweetened coconut
 2/3 c. sugar
 6 Tbsp. flour
 1/2 tsp. salt
 4 egg whites
 1 tsp. vanilla extract
 Chocolate chips to melt for topping

Method

In a large mixing bowl, combine coconut, sugar, flour and salt. Add egg whites and vanilla and mix all ingredients together until well incorporated. Drop batter by the spoonful onto a greased or parchment lined cookie sheet. (I found that I could form the batter into rounds with my hands about the size of a walnut and then place on cookie sheet rather than dropping off of the spoon). Bake at 325 degrees for 20-22 minutes until lightly golden brown. Remove from oven and when cool drizzle melted chocolate on top of each macaroon.
