Celebrating Jews Around the World – January 10th and 11th

Did you know that there are Reform Jewish congregations in 45 countries across the globe? That one the world's largest Passover Seder is held each year in Koh Samu, Thailand? That the Jewish community in India dates to the fifth century, BCE?

The Jewish World has always been and continues to grow ever more diverse. Tempe Beth El is out to learn about and celebrate that diversity with a very special Shabbat experience January 10th-11th.

Shabbat Service & Indian Dinner

Join us at 6:00 pm for Shabbat Services and dinner. During worship we will hear from Dr. Lal Goel, Professor Emeritus from the University of West Florida, who will speak on the Jewish community in his native India. Dr. Lal will cover the history of the Indian Jewish community and highlight some of its unique and beautiful customs.

Following services please join us in the Max L. Bear Social Hall for an Indian-themed Shabbat Dinner catered by Taste of India Restaurant. The cost of the dinner is $10 for adults and $5 for children under 12.

Havdallah Social

The celebration of Jewish diversity continues Saturday night with a special havdallah and covered dish social at the home of Dr. Jeff and Deborah Buchalter, 18 Via De Luna Dr., Sky Home 1906, Pensacola Beach.

To honor the diversity of our own Temple Beth El community, everyone is asked to bring a dish representing their family's ancestry. Together we will dine on a rich of array of foods from places like Ukraine, China, Ireland, Israel, and Sweden.

RSVP

RSVPs for both events can be made with Kathy in the Temple Office. She can be reached at 850-438-3321 or via email at Kathy@templebethelofpensacola.org. Please RSVP prior to January 8.

Widening the Door to Our Big Tent

Attending the Union for Reform Judaism's Biennial in December was a reminder of the inspiring diversity found within the North American Reform Jewish community.

Among the 5,000 people in attendance, there were those raised in the Reform movement (the Biennial celebrated 75 years of NFTY), and those who came to Reform Judaism as adults from other branches of Judaism or as Jews by choice. There were representatives from large urban and suburban congregations, and those from rural communities of only a few dozen individuals. (I think I met half the congregation from the Upper Peninsula of Michigan -- the 70 degrees weather of a San Diego December having something to do with their surprisingly large contingent). There were attendees who preferred morning worship led from the old Union Prayer Book and those who woke up early to participate in services that incorporated yoga and meditation. And at night, as we made our way to concerts held throughout the Gaslamp District, there were those drawn to performances of classical hazanut (cantorial singing) and those who sought out performances by the latest stars on the Jewish Rock scene.

The 2013 URJ Biennial was a testament to the diversity of Reform Jewish life. Our movement is truly a big tent. But a presentation at the Friday morning plenary served as a reminder that there are many, who despite their profound desire to be included, remain outside that tent.

The presentation, featuring a discussion with Jacob Ruderman of the Ruderman Foundation, focused on those in our community with physical challenges. As the presentation highlighted, far too many of our congregations, either because of the culture of our institutions or because of the physical layout of our facilities, remain places where those with disabilities do not feel included.

At Temple Beth El we pride ourselves on the warmth of our welcome, but when we consider the current state of our physical plant -- the absence of an elevator and no handicapped access to the bimah -- it is clear that the welcome we extend to those with disabilities or physical limitations is a qualified one.

As we look toward the future of our congregation -- both in terms of welcoming new members but also serving the needs of our existing members -- these are issues that must be addressed. So too we are challenged, individually and collectively, to create a culture that welcomes and supports those living with disabilities. As URJ President Rabbi Rick Jacobs shared in his keynote sermon, "You can subcontract out the construction of a ramp, but being fully accessible and open to people with disabilities is work that we can only do ourselves, person-by-person, moment by moment."

An estimated 20% of the American Jewish population is living with some form of disability and as we age all of us will face one form or another of physical limitation. Temple Beth El should be a place of learning and celebration for Jews of all physical abilities. Temple Beth El can be a place of learning and celebration for Jews of all physical abilities.

As we begin the secular year 2014, may we resolve to achieve this goal. Together we can ensure that the door of our synagogue is truly wide enough to welcome all who seek community, learning, and holiness.

Rabbi Joel

"Temple Beth El can be a place of learning and celebration for Jews of all physical abilities."

From the President

The new calendar year 2014 has arrived with changing weather that reflects a hint of great things to come for our Congregation. It is an announcement of new beginnings. Our past year has been filled with significant events and experiences that have enriched our lives. Yet, we cannot dwell upon the past but must look forward to our future.

One of the key elements I want to focus on for the future is the issue of transparency. Like the other issues of our time, we have a hard time defining it. For me, it means that our Temple business is conducted in a transparent manner, and by that I mean we create an open environment which serves to keep our membership fully informed with open channels of communication to the Temple leadership.

Our efforts are intended to provide the maximum information on the Temple campus, religious and educational events, calendar and special celebrations that are of interest to the congregation. On a weekly basis, the Rabbi provides an email with the weekly events of interest. The Director of the School for Jewish Living, Andrea Fleekop, authors a weekly email of significant activities in the school. The monthly Bulletin contains all of the information related to Temple services, activities and other information about the Temple. Rich Cacace is the Webmaster for the Temple Beth El website and it reflects all of the information from other sources including the Temple calendar and is updated as changes to the schedule occur.

I have been asked about the Board of Directors meetings. We meet the third Thursday of every month at 5:45 pm in the Temple social hall. Any member of the congregation can and is encouraged to attend. One of the hallmarks of our Temple governance is that all votes are open. The minutes of our Board meetings are available through the Board Secretary, Pat Braunstien, on request. In May of each year we have an annual meeting of the members of the Congregation, and every member is encouraged to attend. I have harped on the issue of your participation in committees because much of the work of the Temple is accomplished through their efforts.

This year the by-laws committee, with the assistance of other committees, is undertaking a review and update of the Temple by-laws. Their efforts will be discussed and approved by the Board of Directors and then sent as a recommendation to the Congregation for your approval. The Long Range Planning Task Force, which has been at work since July, is framing a new long range plan which they will shortly be presenting to the Board of Directors for their approval and recommendation to the Congregation for their approval. This effort reflects the surveys, discussion groups, past Shabbatons and individual meetings, where you have expressed your desire for change and focus. We are still working on a plan for the modernization of the Temple campus. The Committee will be submitting their initiative to the Board of Directors for their input and approval and then at a special Congregational meeting, I will be asking for your approval for implementation.

In early 2014, a new telecommunications system will be installed at TBE. Our current system has failed and we are down to one functioning line. The system is old and uses outdated technology that can no longer be maintained. The new system will have a backbone called a T-1 which will give us all the services we need both now and in the future. The new phone and data system will be installed and maintained by Callis Communications, a local company that offers 24/7 customer service based in the USA.

I wanted you to know that Rabbi Fleekop has been a welcomed integral part of all of these initiatives. Creating a loving and open congregation is not just a single effort but requires the attention of all our members every day. Key to our success is the recognition that talking is not a one way street. We need your ideas and your participation.

The Temple office will be closed on January 1

Sisterhood Notes

Shalom and Happy New Year, y'all!

The new year, as always, brings a time of reflection, and what better time to reflect than Shabbat? January 17th is our Sisterhood Shabbat at Temple, and we hope all of you will join us at a special services led by your Sisterhood. We will be worshipping together with B'nai Israel's Sisterhood, who will be joining us on Friday night. They will then reciprocate on Saturday morning with a Sisterhood service at their synagogue, and we will join them. I urge you all to take this opportunity to get to know more members of our Jewish community. Our Sisterhoods work very well together!!

On Wednesday, January 15th, we will have our Sisterhood luncheon, once again catered with a delicious meal provided by Signature Caterers. Come join us at 11:45 at Temple for a lovely few hours of camaraderie, good food, and an entertaining program. More details to follow.

January is when we begin rehearsals for our Temple Theater Night, which this year is May 10th (Saturday evening). The theme this year is the Jewish Mafia (think "If I Were a Hit Man"), and promises to be as much fun rehearsing as we (hope) it will be watching. Contact Renee at rmoore40@yahoo.com if you are interested. You don't need talent, just a willingness to let Renee turn you into an instant comic. And all monies go to camp scholarships.

We have added the option of babysitting to our events, so just let us know if you need to take advantage of that perk, and, with a week's notice, your wish will be our command!!

That way you won't have to miss out on any of our good times.

And speaking of good times, we are looking to expand our activities, so please contact us if you have any ideas to help us create a more exciting (I know, is that even possible???) Sisterhood. We are open to all suggestions, and encourage each of you to challenge our creativity with your thoughts.

Life is a Cabaret!!

Christmas Day Volunteer Project a Success

Thank you to Julie Rayborn for organizing a Federation Christmas Day volunteer project at the Ronald McDonald House. Over twenty members of the congregation volunteered to prepare brunch and do the chores that residents are required to do each day. We gathered at the House early on Christmas morning and were divided into groups. Some took on kitchen tasks, preparing the delicious menu that Julie designed and some took on the chores that needed to be done in the house, including cleaning, laundry, restocking toiletries and picking up the grounds. In little less than two hours we finished our work and the guests of the Ronald McDonald House enjoyed a wonderful Christmas brunch and did not need to worry about tasks around the house. Many in our group asked for Julie's breakfast casserole recipe and she was generous enough to provide it. I hope this becomes an annual event. It was a blessing to be able to give back to people who face the challenge of having their children hospitalized.
-Janet Schilling

Julie Rayborn's Breakfast Casserole

Preheat oven to 350 degrees
 1 Fresh French Bread loaf, cubed
 6 Eggs, beaten with 1 cup milk
 1- 1 1/2c. Shredded Cheese
 1- 2 c. total diced mushrooms, green & red peppers & onions
 Either olive oil or butter
 Salt & Pepper to taste
Saute' veggies in pan – either with olive oil or butter and add salt and pepper for flavor. Cook the veggies down until soft. Beat eggs, milk & add salt & pepper for taste. Coat bottom of casserole dish with butter or oil. Layer cubed bread in the casserole dish. Place veggies on top. Place shredded cheese next – if you have the time – use block cheese and shred it so it's nice & fresh. Pour beaten eggs over casserole dish to cover the cheese. Place in oven and cook until eggs are nice and fluffy and cooked – should be around 20 minutes. If you like a little kick add Tabasco sauce right before you are ready to serve. Enjoy!
Cooking Note: Measurements added; Julie says she wings it!!!

2013 Biennial Informal Report by Pat Braunstien

Five thousand Jewish people in a convention center produce an energy level beyond measure. We were on the go from morning into the night when we had the stamina. A two hour time difference was tough when programs were scheduled for 9 PM PST or later & our 11 PM CST bodies wanted to go to bed.

Nonetheless, we learned a lot attending breakout sessions. Many were geared to small congregations, so their content was particularly useful. Though we were all "small" there are marked degrees of size. Our 150+ member congregation seemed HUGE in comparison to those with only 20 to 35 families. URJ has organized a group to focus on assisting small congregations. We have invited one of their representatives to visit Pensacola to share success stories from other congregations. Soon there will also be an online chat room available on which we can exchange ideas.

I focused my attention on ways to improve communications. Fortunately, many of them are low or no cost and that fits our budget very well. We will use additional forms of social media to connect with our existing links such as our website, weekly e-mail, Facebook page and monthly newsletter.

BTW - The shopping area was awesome! I have never seen so many unique tallit, kippot, wall hangings, shofars, Temple aids and Judaica in one place! I am happy to report that my credit card worked well there.

Rabbi Jacobs, President of the URJ, announced that his team relocated a group focusing on youth engagement over to the Hebrew Union College Campus and that they then sold the second floor of their building to raise funds. That money will be used on programs to engage and retain young people. What a wise decision! We were proud to learn that Reform is the only growing branch of Judaism.

Saturday morning Shabbat services were scheduled for 2.5 hours following a musical wake-up. We sang our way downstairs into the huge auditorium where the service was to be held. I feared that I would be bored with too much heavy religion. Instead – the time flew because of interesting speakers, music, presentations, dancing while seated in chairs (we'll teach it to you!) and a mind blowing Torah reading. thirteen platforms and tables were set up throughout the auditorium. Local congregations carried a Torah to each one. We heard the story of Jacob blessing his twelve sons and naming a tribe after each of them. Then a woman came forward and introduced herself as Jacob's daughter Dinah. She was pitied because she did not get a tribe. Instead she replied that her gift was far better than that of her brothers.... that she was gifted with woman's intuition and the ability to multi-task. That nearly brought down the house since the Women of Reform Judaism were out in full force celebrating their 100th anniversary. Then simultaneous Torah readings began with different groups of witnesses surrounding each passage. First were the current NFTY members who were joined by all past NFTY members. This huge group represented nearly half the audience. They were followed by the rabbis: 1/3of the audience, the WRJ – nearly half the room again and so on. Nearly everyone in the room took a turn at a Torah platform. It was a fabulous experience!

The next Biennial is in 2015 in Orlando. Perhaps we can carpool there to fan our growing congregation's enthusiasm.

Educator's Message: Sharing the Joy of Judaism

In December I was thrilled to share the joy of Hanukkah with two groups of children, for whom this was their first exposure. Both groups of children were curious about the objects I brought and grateful for the opportunity to learn about and share in the joy of my holiday. They played dreidel with excitement at getting the gimmel and their eyes glowed with the light of the Hanukkah candles. The only difference between these groups of children is that one was healthy and the other was hospital bound.

While Hanukkah is a Jewish holiday, its messages of hope, light, and miracles can bring joy to all. The struggle of the underdog and the faith in the greater good resonate with people of all backgrounds.

Sharing the joy of Judaism with others is both an honor and a great responsibility. Teaching others about our rich heritage and taking the time to learn about other people and their traditions enriches our understanding of one another. The ripple effects are endless.

In this new year 2014, may we create opportunities to share the joys of Judaism with family, friends, colleagues, and community members.

L'Shalom,

Andrea

Debra Kerman, Nicole Friedland, and Andrea Fleekop share Hanukkah at Children's Hospital

Singing and Ice Cream Social Fun for All! Children from Temple Beth El and B'nai Israel sing for residents at Wesley Haven on Dec 8. After singing the children and residents enjoyed ice cream. Program sponsored by the Pensacola Jewish Federation.

Weight Watchers Group to Form

Hard to believe, but it is 2014 already. Did you make New Year's resolutions? Was one of them to eat healthier and lose weight? After losing 42 pounds and becoming a Lifetime member, I have been hired by Weight Watchers as a Leader.

Losing weight is not accomplished overnight. It is a struggle that many go through day after day. I'd like to help by bringing the Weight Watchers Program to Temple Beth El in 2014. It is reasonably priced at 10 weeks for $125 or 12 weeks for $150.

In order to get permission from Weight Watchers to start a class, I need at least 15 people. I will work to set up a time and day of the week that will be convenient for everyone.

Please grab me at Temple, call me at (850)449-7439 or email me at gingigingi13@gmail.com.

I look forward to working with each of you. Just like in Sisterhood, we can be stronger together!

He is the chief translator of the widely read My People's Prayer Book series (winner of the National Jewish Book Award), and author of both the critically acclaimed In the Beginning: A Short History of the Hebrew Language (NYU Press) and the popular And God Said: How Translations Conceal The Bible's Original Meaning (Thomas Dunne Books/St. Martin's Press).

Thursday, February 20
Dr. Carole Levin will speak on Jewish women in Shakespeare Theater at UWF

THANK YOU FOR YOUR HELP

Many thanks to everyone who contributed to the fund to help our cleaning ladies Dana & Doris after their trailer was deemed unfit for habitation. It was gratifying to see them happily and safely settled into their new home on Christmas Eve. Through thrift store shopping we were able to provide them with bedding and curtains, a wooden dining table and chairs, a twin mattress set, a small recliner chair and a sofa which they selected from photographs. Pam Ravenscroft gave them a queen size bed set. Benni Baker drove them all over town to view accommodations and generously settled them into one of her two bedroom units. Financial contributors were: Rich and Lynn Cacace, Pat Langnau, Ray and Carol Engel, Penny and Dan Phillips, Rabbi Joel and Andrea Fleekop, Rose and Bill Kuhirte (who also gave them a prepaid cell phone to use while in transition), Janet and Charles Kahn, Renee and Steve Eilen, Deborah and Jeff Buchalter and Pat and Sid Braunstien. Any additional funds raised will go towards the purchase of a used washer/dryer set as theirs is completely worn out. Please make your check payable to Temple Beth El Sisterhood and mark it for Dana & Doris.

Many thanks, Pat Braunstien

The congregation and Board of Directors offers condolences to the families of Leslie Miller
Joyce Goldenberg
and Lennie Finkelstein
on their recent passings.
May their memories be for blessing.
