Adar - Nissan 5775

Purim Celebration: Sunday, March 8

The congregation and community are invited to share in the fun as Temple Beth El marks the festival of Purim with a special service and megillah reading on Sunday, March 8. The celebration, beginning at 11:00, will feature the music of song leader Nick May, the participation of students in the School for Jewish Living, and the comedic styling of Rabbi Joel Fleekop. Wear a costume and grab a gragger as we read the triumphant tale of Esther and Mordechai and stomp out the name of "you know who." At the close of services there will be Hamantashen for everyone.

Following our Temple's Purim celebration, the Pensacola Jewish Federation invites everyone to join them at the Creative Learning Academy, 3151 Hyde Park Road, for the annual community-wide Purim Carnival. Bounce houses, cotton candy, popcorn and games all free of charge. Lunch will be available for purchase.

From the Rabbi

Thinking Through March Madness

In the Mishnah we read, mi'she'nikhnas adar, marbin b'simkchah, "When Adar enters, happiness increases." In this statement, the rabbis Mishnah were alluding to the festival of Purim, a holiday whose engaging story and fun traditions continue to bring joy to our lives.

But the Hebrew month of Adar, which overlaps this year with much of March, brings joy to our lives in many other ways as well. There is delight in seeing the days lengthen and grow warmer. There is joy in the arrival of the spring's first flowers. And of course, there is the euphoria that sports fans feel with the beginning of the NCAA College Basketball Tournament.

The tournament, affectionately known as March Madness, involves 68 teams and lasts three weeks. It has a long history of competitive games that come down to the final second and almost every year the tournament produces a Cinderella team, a team from a small school that finds unexpected success. The competitive nature of the games and the compelling stories of the teams' journeys, are an important part of the tournaments incredible popularity. But another important part of March Madness' popularity is office pools.

This year more than 50 million Americans are expected to participate in an office pool and, according to a Harris Interactive Poll, nearly one in four Americans has done so in the past. Some enter the office pool in hopes of winning a cash prize while others are interested in bragging rights. Regardless of the motivation, and win or lose, I believe the act of filling out a bracket has something valuable to teach us.

Filling out a bracket begins by choosing a winner in each of the first round games. Next, with the results from the choices you made in the first round, you pick who will win in the second round. These steps are repeated a total of six times, leaving you with the team you predict will win the national championship.

It is a simple process, but it graphically represents for us a very important point; our decisions have future repercussions. If I have a team losing in the second round, then I can't pick them to win a fourth round game. After the first round, the choices I have available to me depend entirely on what choices I have already made.

Life doesn't fit easily into a bracket, but the idea holds true. The options we have available to us today depend on the choices we made yesterday. Even more important, the choices that will be available to us tomorrow depend on the decisions we make today.

In this, the month of Adar, the month of the drunken revelry of Purim and the excitement of March Madness, pause and take a moment for clear and sober thought. Take a moment to think about the choices you want to have available to you down the line, whether in terms of your family, your finances, or involvement in the Temple. And then identify the steps you are willing to take today to make that a reality.

The Mishnah teaches that the month of Adar and the holiday of Purim bring joy to our lives. May our lives be filled with the joy of Purim, of Shabbat, of all the Jewish days of celebration, as well as with the joy that comes with living the lives we imagine.

Rabbi Joel

"Take a moment to think about the choices you want to have available to you down the line, ..."

From the President

By the time this Bulletin is received the groundbreaking for our new Temple campus will be history. Shortly thereafter we should have in hand the state and county permits that will signal the beginning of hard construction. Only then can our architect and Greenhut Construction provide us with a schedule that will give us some idea of when the construction will end and we can fully return to the Temple campus. In the meantime every effort will be made to continue to celebrate Shabbat and other holidays in our sanctuary. The school for Jewish Living will continue in the school building until the contractor requires the building for renovation. Our Torah study is already being conducted on Saturday mornings in the School for Jewish Living. There will certainly be more communications as information becomes available. During the year we will have life cycle events in our sanctuary and where necessary celebrations in other facilities. Rabbi's office will remain in the Temple until our contractors begin the renovations in the sanctuary proper. Kathy Smith our Administrator has moved the Temple office into her home and your calls are forwarded directly to her as is our mail. If you have questions concerning the renovation please call me. At this moment in time we don't have full information on the schedule or alternative plans driven by the construction. As soon as we know, you will know.

There is an issue that I feel needs repeating. Greenhut Construction has equipment in the parking areas. Please use caution when parking in the upper lot. I would recommend that you use the Strong Street entrance for accessing the Temple. If you park in the upper lot, I recommend that you stay near the top of the lot so you can walk directly to the Palafox Street entrance of the sanctuary. The lower entrances will be locked.

You cannot comprehend the number of hours of hard work that the members of the renovation committee and other Temple members and friends have spent in preparing, packing and moving the contents of the Temple into storage rooms, and commercial storage facilities to prepare the building for construction. There was a backbreaking, thankless task that demonstrated their devotion to our Temple and our congregation. What strikes me as awesome is that Shabbat, lifecycle, and holiday celebrations along with the School for Jewish

Living continue without interruption.

I had an opportunity to enter the Temple when there was no one there and to listen, feel and to see our Temple as a holy place where Jews come to pray as well as to socialize. In that silent Temple I realized that Temple Beth El plays a pivotal role as the center of Reform Judaism here. The fact that we, as members of Temple Beth El, have committed to making our Temple more welcoming and accessible, speaks to our recognition that we have a holy obligation to provide for the continuation of Reform Judaism, and our Temple speaks to us about not losing our connectivity with our rich past.

L'shalom,

Fred

Shabbat with Song Leader
Nick May
Friday, March 6, 6:00 pm

Temple Beth El is excited to welcome back Nick May, Head Song Leader at Henry S. Jacob's Camp. With the assistance of our 3-5 grade students, Nick will lead the congregation in an up-beat, music-filled worship experience.

Following services a dessert oneg will be held in the sanctuary vestibule. Please note that due to construction, there will not be a covered-dish dinner.

Sisterhood Notes

Shalom, everyone. Since March marks the month that Steve and I will be going to Israel, we went to Mobile to see an IMAX documentary called "Jerusalem". It is only 45 minutes long, but well worth the drive (and it will be there until April 4). You come away with an understanding of why that city is so important to Jews, Christians and Muslims, because you see the beauty of the city through the eyes of three young women of those religions. Each of these women wanted all religions to find a way to live there in peace – which made them sisters in spirit. I had a sense that if they could just get together in sisterhood and "work it all out", they would do it. If only....

And as for our Sisterhood, we had a great program last month about nutrition, and we thank Ellen Stubenhaus for sharing her knowledge with us (but I'm still not giving up Diet Coke). This month's luncheon is Wednesday, March 18th at 11:45 a.m. at Ever'man's. Liz McCulley will be giving us a cooking demo on Sephardic foods for Passover, and Rabbi Joel will also enlighten us on other cultures' customs. Be there or be hungry!!

Our show is progressing very well, and we hope you all join us on Saturday night, May 16th, at the Gulf Breeze Rec Center – all money goes for camp scholarships, and all laughter is yours to keep!

Thanks for bearing with us as we continue to provide Onegs on Friday nights. It is so important to keep the spirit of camaraderie during this Temple renovation period, and we know the end result will be so worth any inconvenience. Don't worry, as long as there is Sisterhood, there is food.

Life is a Cabaret,
Renee and Marty

Senior Mitzvah Project

Senior Mitzvah Project is Temple Beth El's largest community service project of the year. It makes a huge difference in the lives of some of the Pensacola area's most needy Senior Citizens. But as in year's past, we need your help for our Senior Mitzvah project to be a success. Volunteers are needed to both provide requested items and to help in their delivery. Contact Linda Armacost for a list of requested items. We ask that gift cards be purchased in $30 denominations. For those who would like to contribute cash, please make checks payable to Temple Beth El Sisterhood. To volunteer to provide an item, or if you would like to help with delivery, please contact Linda Armacost via email or at 850-393-7354.

Matanot La'Evynoim

The tradition of sharing gifts with those in need on Purim is an ancient tradition which traces its origins to Megillat Esther 9:22 which instructs us to mark this festival holiday by sending packages of food to one another and providing assistance to the poor.

Please welcome new Member, Benni Baker to Temple Beth El. She has been a "friend" for a long time and now is part of our family.

Educator's Message: PURIM, More Than Just Costumes and Hamantaschen

When we think of Purim, most of us conjure up images of dressing up in costumes, sounding the grogger every time Haman's name is read, and eating yummy Hamantaschen. While those are important aspects of the holiday, did you know that there are four mitzvot (commandments) associated with Purim?

If you come to Temple on Purim, you will fulfill two of them: Hearing the megillah reading and celebrating with food and drink. The other two commandments involve gift-giving. We are instructed to give gifts to the poor in our community and give gifts of food called Mishloach Manot, to friends. In the megillah, Mordechai records the events of Purim and instructs us how to commemorate Purim. The 14th and 15th days of Adar are to be observed as "Days of feasting and merrymaking, and as an occasion for sending a package of gifts from one friend to another, and gifts to poor people." (Esther 9:22)

In observance of this mitzvah, Temple Beth El has scheduled its annual Senior Mitzvah project to coincide with Purim. Giving gifts on Purim, both to our friends and to those in need, provide us with an opportunity to reach out to our community. Giving tzedakah, while a mitzvah all the time, particularly on Purim provides us with the opportunity to reflect on how truly lucky we are, both in the days of Esther and today. See details about this project on page 4.

As we approach Purim this year, I encourage you to try all four mitzvot associated with this joyous holiday. Our tradition teaches, "MiShenichnas Adar, Marbim B'Simcha - We Increase Our Simcha Upon the Entry of the Month of Adar." May this be a joyous time enriched with new meaning.

L'Shalom,

Andrea Fleekop

Discover the Role of Jews in the Deep South
Blues and Jews Road Trip:
May 2 - May 5, 2015

Rabbi Fleekop and Jody Schlesinger are planning a road trip to explore to role of Jews in the Deep South and also take in a healthy dose of Blues. We will be leaving Pensacola Saturday morning, May 2 and returning on Tuesday May 5. Planned stops in Mississippi include Jackson, Greenwood, Greenville, Vicksburg, Port Gibson, Natchez and Brookhaven. Each of these cities has a rich Jewish history and the legacy of a once-thriving Jewish community. Together we will tour historic synagogues, cemeteries, and other sites of interest, as well as meet with members of the Jewish communities who will tell their history and their hope for the future.

Not to be left out, we will also take in the Blues that is so much a part of Mississippi. We will walk in the footsteps of B.B. King, Robert Johnson and Muddy Waters, and experience today's real deal Blues scene. Blues sites include B.B. King Museum, Robert Johnson grave site, and many more. More details to follow, so keep an eye on the bulletin, email and website. For now, please email Jody Schlesinger at:

jwschlesinger@cox.net any questions, and to reserve your spot on the Blues and Jews Road Trip. You can also email Rabbi Fleekop at: rabbi@templebethelofpensacola.org.

Kitchen Kibbitz by Janet Schilling

March is the month for hamantaschen! I can predictably go to my recipe file and almost with my eyes closed, find my grandmother's recipe that is our family favorite. And though I have experimented with different fillings on a whim, I always make the delicious apple confections that remind me of my childhood. But that does not mean that I am not open to interesting suggestions, and I have to thank Pat Braunstien for forwarding a Hadassah magazine entry to me. Entitled, Modern Hamantaschen and Other Savory Tweaks, by Adeena Sussman, it notes: Jewish food has undergone a transformation, and Leah Koenig is one of its leading agents of change. A savvy food writer whose work has appeared everywhere from Saveur and Food & Wine magazines to Epicurious.com - and who is the author of our own The Hadassah Everyday Cookbook (Rizzoli) - Koenig's latest book is Modern Jewish Cooking: Recipes & Customs for Today's Kitchen (Chronicle Books). In this new collection, she finds ways to honor our heritage without feeling bound by it.

The following is a very different take on more traditional sweet Hamantaschen. Enjoy!

Sweet Potato-Parmesan
Hamantaschen

Makes about 36 cookies

1 medium sweet potato, peeled and cut into 1-inch pieces

2 garlic cloves, peeled

1 tablespoon olive oil

1 shallot, finely chopped

kosher salt and freshly ground black pepper

1 teaspoon finely chopped fresh thyme

1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

2 1/2 cups all-purpose flour

1 teaspoon baking powder

1 tablespoon dried herbs, such as thyme, rosemary or oregano, crushed with a mortar and pestle

1/2 teaspoon kosher salt

1 tablespoon water

1/4 cup vegetable oil

1/2 cup sugar

2 eggs

1. Make the filling: Place the sweet potato and garlic in a small saucepan and cover with cold water. Bring to a boil over high heat, then turn the heat to medium and simmer until the potato is very tender, 10 to 15 minutes. Drain well.

2. Meanwhile, heat the olive oil in a small pan set over medium heat. Add the shallot, season with salt and pepper and cook, stirring occasionally, until browned, 3 to 5 minutes. Remove from the heat.

3. Using a potato masher or fork, mash the sweet potato and garlic into a thick purée. Stir in the thyme, shallot and Parmesan. Season with more salt and pepper and let cool slightly before filling hamantaschen. If desired, make up to 2 days ahead and store, covered, in refrigerator.

4. Make hamantaschen: Whisk together the flour, baking powder, dried herbs and salt in a medium bowl.

5. In a large bowl, whisk together the water, vegetable oil, sugar and eggs until combined. Slowly stir in the flour mixture, mixing until the dough begins to come together. Turn the dough out onto a flat surface and knead a few times with your hands until it is smooth, but not sticky. (If the dough appears too dry, knead in more water, 1 teaspoon at a time. If it looks too wet, knead in up to 1/4 cup more flour, 1 tablespoon at a time, until you reach the right consistency.)

6. Gather the dough, then divide it in half with a knife and form into two flat disks. Wrap each disk tightly in plastic wrap and refrigerate for at least 3 hours, or up to overnight.

7. Preheat the oven to 350°F and line a large rimmed baking sheet with parchment paper. Remove half the dough from the refrigerator. On a lightly floured work surface, roll the dough to a 1/8-inch thickness. Use a 3-inch round cookie cutter or glass to cut out as many circles as possible and carefully transfer them, about 1/2-inch apart, to the prepared baking sheet. Gather the dough scraps, reroll, cut out additional circles and transfer them to the cookie sheet.

8. Spoon 1 teaspoon of sweet potato-Parmesan filling into the center of each dough circle. Fold the left side over on an angle, followed by the right side. Fold the bottom flap up, tucking one end under the side flap to make a triangle-shaped pocket (the filling should still be visible in the center); pinch the seams firmly to seal. Repeat the process with the remaining dough and filling.

9. Bake until lightly golden and browned at the corners—15 to 18 minutes. Remove from the oven and let the cookies cool on the baking sheet for 5 minutes, then transfer to a wire rack to cool slightly. These are best served warm. Store in airtight container in the refrigerator for up to 3 days. Reheat leftovers briefly in a toaster oven.

New Advertising Policy for Bulletin

Temple Beth El now accepts ads for posting in the monthly bulletin from Temple members and those businesses that serve Temple Beth El. Examples of businesses that serve Temple Beth El are: Waters & Hibbert Funeral Home, Arch Henderson Memorials, Plant & Flower Boutique Florists, Happy Handymen, and cleaning ladies Dana and Doris.

The ads must be submitted by the 15th of the month in the form of a picture scan or a PDF to bulletin editor, Janet Schilling at: janetschilling54@gmail.com. If the ad is commercially produced, creator permission must be included in writing with the initial ad submittal.

An editorial committee, which includes the Rabbi, will review and accept ads at its discretion prior to inclusion in the bulletin. The ad space will be available in 2 sizes: business card and quarter page. The number of ads accepted each month will be on a space available basis. The fee for monthly advertising will be $25 for a business card size ad and $50 for a quarter page size ad. The fee is due at the time of ad submittal.
